

Big-hitting golfer chases top prize of £62,000

DARTMOUTH Golf and Country Club are sponsoring a player who hopes to be one of the longest drivers in Europe, and possibly the world.

Paul 'Hammer Time' Glazier, 28, a founder member of the club, is part of the Long Drivers of Europe professional circuit. The competition boils down to the longer hitter winning the prize, which can amount to as much as £62,000.

The sports scientist from Blackawton is aiming to make it to the top of his new sport within the next year.

Big hitter after major prize

From back page the competition when visiting the London Golf Show last year.

'I had a go on a couple of simulators and managed to win the Nike and Mizuno long drive challenges,' he said.

'I came away with £500 worth of golf equipment and some invites to long drive events, so all in all it turned out to be a very worthwhile trip.'

He then made his debut on the long drive circuit in England, where he did so well he got a place in the European championships.

He got through to the semi-final, putting him among the top 16 in Europe.

Glazier will have the use of all the facilities at Dartmouth Golf and Country Club as he prepares to take on the world's best. He played much of his junior golf at the club and knows it well.

The managing director of the club, Jamie Waugh, said: 'We are pleased to have Paul back on board.'

'My only concern is the number of balls he might lose out the back of the driving range!'
